Holding on to anger is like grasping a hot coal with the intent of throwing it at someone else. You are the one who gets burned.

Pentecost Sunday

The disciples had cut and run when Jesus was arrested. They were cowering in fear behind locked doors when he came to them after the resurrection. His first word to them was not recrimination or ridicule but "Peace"—"Shalom." Next he changed them from disciples, learners, into apostles, sharers in his mission. Finally, completely forgiven for their own lapse, they were entrusted with forgiveness of sins for others. What a staggering transformation, and how utterly contrary to human expectations. 'Sometimes we're harder on ourselves than God is.'

Jesus intended to continue the forgiveness of sins in the sacrament of reconciliation and in the forgiveness we offer one another as family members, friends, co-workers, and others. It all begins when we accept the fact that God loves us despite our failings.
