"Well done, good and faithful servant..."

The thirty third Sunday of Ordinary Time

In the Gospel the man places his trust in his three servants and trusts them completely according to their ability — he recognises that not everyone is the same so he doesn't overburden any of them. The man is not looking for perfection but for honesty and effort that his servants would do their best to reward him for his trust. Two fulfil his trust but the third, the man with one talent, allows his fears to restrict his progress and growth. He was afraid to take a risk, to trust in his own ability or the support of others. In the Gospels the people whom Jesus most admires are the ones who have made mistakes and learnt from them to become better people.
